New! Shrubs of Indiana CD

Your new identification resource to 117 native shrub species, from the populous common blackberry to the very rare American b arberry that are native to Indiana and the Midwest. Inspired by the work of pioneer botanist Charles Deam. Co-authored by Sally Weeks and George Parker of Purdue's Forestry and Natural Resources Departmen t. T here are few resources like this available!

This CD features detailed characteristics for species identification; full- color photos of leaves, buds, twigs, flowers, fruit, bark, form ; and habitat requirements and range maps for each species .

Updated! Native Trees of the Midwest Book

A great companion reference book to the Shrubs of Indiana CD, the book Native Trees of the Midwest is a definitive guide to identifying trees in Indiana and surrounding states. Descriptive text explains how to identify every species in any season, and color photographs show all important characteristics. Not only does the book allow the user to identify trees and learn of their ecological and distributional attributes, but it also presents an evaluation of each species relative to its potential ornamental value for those interested in landscaping. Since tree species have diverse values to wildlife, an evaluation of wildlife uses is presented with a degree of detail available nowhere else. The revised and expanded second edition contains a chapter on introduced species that have become naturalized and invasive throughout the region.

Trees of Indiana CD

The Trees of Indiana CD was designed for the student of dendrology who has some fundamental knowledge of taxonomic groupings of trees. Although this knowledge is not essential for using this CD, it is helpful. An introductory section explains the difference between hardwoods and conifers with pictures and descriptions.

The CD also includes a species section with 118 species of trees (102 native to Indiana and 16 introduced and fairly common in the state). This section has pictures of each species and descriptions that illustrate important identifying characteristics.
